MADRID, Nov. 17.—(INS)—Behind a cascade of artillery cross-fire, more rebel companies splashed through the shallow Manzanares River and clambered into Madrid today, while the insurgent vanguard slowly fought forward street by street in the University City section of north-western Madrid.

Terrified by word that the Rebels had occupied most of the $25,000,000 University group and smashed forward to the North Station, residents off the entire area fled to the eastern part of the capital.

Fires, sending up great pillars of black and gray smoke at a dozen points in the western part of town, added to the horror resulting from a double night air raid in which at least 70 were killed and 150 wounded.

WITH THE WHITE ARMY IN MADRID'S SUBURBS, Nov. 16—(Delayed)—(INS)—The battle of Madrid was an artillery duel for University City today, and while Red machine guns rattled all day along the eight-mile Manzanares front to keep the White infantry from crossing the river, Madrid was wreathed in the black and white smoke of high explosives which for 12 hours rained upon the trenches.

The Reds have developed a resistance that amazes every observer, but can be explained by the following points:

First, they have had time to receive important reinforcements from abroad, namely, Russian and French airplanes, of which the pursuit type are faster than anything on the White side; also tanks, of which at least 50 have been observed; also artillery and ammunition; and last, for example, an "International Brigade" of 2,000 men.

Second, the Reds, long deceived by Madrid about their artillery position, now know they have only to fight, flee or die.

Third, the Reds, 90 per cent untrained for military purposes, are poor troops in the field, but able as the next man in fighting behind houses.

Finally, they have for the moment the best military position for defense they ever occupied, because all Madrid is a fortress and every house a machine gun nest.

They have fortified their side of the Manzanares trenches in the manner of the Great War, with concrete machine gun pill-boxes lining the banks.

All day long Red artillery poured fire in our direction from the main Red centers, and all day White batteries sought to silence the enemy's fire.

I watched from the roof of a high building just this side of the Segovia bridge the effect of the White artillery fire, and it was remarkable how the guns avoided hitting civilian buildings but concentrated on the Red artillery bases.

Storm Wrecks Ship

New York, Nov. 17.—The tail end of an unusually widespread storm today wreaked havoc with two freighters in the Atlantic, killing the captain and two crew members of one, and causing both to send out distress messages, according to advice from Radio Marine Corporation and Mackay Radio.

Both ships, the S. S. Tweedbank, of Belfast, Ireland, and the S. S. Sheaf, of London, ran into difficulties within 200 miles of Bermuda, radio advice said. It was the Tweedbank which was reported as losing her captain and sailors. RCA's Chatham, Massachusetts, station reported on that ship as follows:

"S. S. Tweedbank reported in position 37.00 north, 59.35 west, in heavy gale, hove to now. Captain killed, two men washed overboard. Radio operator is marooned in radio room and cannot get to bridge. Heavy seas running."

Her engine room awash, the S. S. Sheaf, a British freighter, was in distress off Cape Hatteras today. The Sheaf, a 3,050-ton vessel broadcast a radio appeal for ships in the vicinity to stand by. The S. S. Tulsa, was racing to the position of the stricken ship.

Mackay radio, which intercepted the Sheaf's appeal for help gave the vessel's position as latitude 34.55 north, longitude 56.57 west, slightly east of Cape Hatteras, off the coast of North Carolina.

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Nov. 17.—Bensalem High School Alumni members will have their day this Saturday when both graduates and undergraduates of the high school here meet to celebrate Alumni Day. A football game during the day and a dance during the evening will be the highlights of the occasion.

Both the dates of the dance and the annual football game between the high school varsity and the Alumni have been moved ahead this year for the first time. It is expected that by having Alumni Day earlier in the season bigger crowds will result.

Francis Williams, president of the Alumni Association, also pointed out that by having the celebration before the Thanksgiving holidays it will be possible for the teachers to be on hand. In past years the affair was held during the holiday period and few teachers were present to participate.

The football squad of the Alumni Association is being groomed under direction of William Amick and Axel Kleinsorg. During past battles the varsity has usually come out on top, but this year a reversal is expected.

The annual football game Saturday afternoon will be followed by the Alumni dance in the evening. The dance will be held in the high school auditorium. Richard Brackin, Andalusia, is in charge of this affair and predicts that all those present will have a very enjoyable evening. A popular dance orchestra has been secured and plans for the decorations will be completed before Saturday evening. Dancing will be from 8 to 12.

FALLSINGTON

The P. T. A. held their November meeting in the school house on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Charles South and daughter Virginia were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Klockner, Langhorne.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Archibley, Linden, were week-end visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Klockner.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodward Carter and son spent a recent day with Mrs. Kalapots, Trenton, N. J.

Mrs. S. K. Woolston was a recent supper guest of Mrs. Louise White Watson.

Mrs. Charles Morgan, Jericho Hill, spent a recent day at the home of her sister, Mrs. Roy Wildman.

Mrs. Edward Reading has gone to El Paso, Texas, where she will visit relatives for two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Woolston and family, Holmesburg, were Saturday visitors at the Woolston Farm.

BEGIN WORK ON LAST LINK IN BETHLEHEM PIKE*Dalton Brothers, Paoli, Were Successful Bidders For The Job*NOW GRADING ROUTE

QUAKERTOWN, Nov. 17.—Work on the closing of the only open link in an otherwise improved highway, formerly known as the Bethlehem Pike, now route 309, began last week when Dalton Brothers, Paoli, successful bidders for the construction of the three-lane highway, began grading on the new right of way with steam shovels and tractors.

The new piece of roadway, of three-lane, dual type construction, as the connecting link between Quakertown and Sellersville, strikes a new route from the end of the present concrete road west of Quakertown. The new highway will follow almost a straight line from that point southwest to the present pike and will end at the Ridge road above Sellersville.

Work was started at the "dead end" of the concrete highway at the Red Diamond corner and is now well under way past the Friends' meeting house and the Brush meadow section.

Grading, excavating and fill-ins will be continued throughout the Winter, unless extreme weather conditions prevent. Huge shovels are being used at present through the wooded sections. Sellersville Council's failure to come to an agreement about damages and right of way is holding up the locating of the highway from the Ridge to and through Sellersville.

The late Mr. Tolbert is survived by his wife and his mother who resides in California. He was a veteran of the World War, and had made his home in this borough for some time.

STATE DEDUCTS $2500,
MORRISVILLE BUDGET*Board of Education Claims It Cannot, Therefore, Balance
Its Budget*WERE NOT NOTIFIED

MORRISVILLE, Nov. 17.—Because the State Department of Education has deducted $2,500 from the usual State appropriation to the local schools here, members of the school board claim they will not be able to balance the school budget. The deduction was made in spite of the fact that the local Board of Education has already paid the Teacher's Retirement Board the full amount due from the Morrisville district toward this pension fund for this year.

No notation was enclosed at the time the State appropriation check was received to show why the money was deducted, and it was not until a request was made for an explanation that word was received from Harrisburg that the sum was taken for retirement of teachers.

The deduction, in the light of the fact that the sum has already been paid, is puzzling local school authorities. An effort will be made to procure a detailed statement showing the reason for the action.

Directors of the local schools have pointed out to the State authorities that the deduction will make it impossible to balance the school budget as required in the School Code.

The 63-year-old financier arrived aboard the Queen Mary, accompanied by his valet-secretary. After breakfasting in the sitting room of his suite, he agreed to see a few of the newspapermen.

"You are expecting me to cackle, but I have nothing to cackle about," chuckled Morgan as he removed a long, curved pipe from his teeth, and greeted the reporters with handshakes.

A report was read at the recent meeting showing that the planting of evergreens and shrubbery at the Robert Morris Home has increased the beauty of the place.

Gifts of evergreens were received from Mr. and Mrs. Percy Moon, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Howell, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley H. Romine, Mr. and Mrs. William Fielding, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin R. Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Boehm, Mr. and Mrs. James McAuley, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bunting and Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Reiter.

Madrid, Nov. 17.—Rebel airplanes rained bombs on Madrid today as invading insurgents advanced slowly into the university city section, under a cascade of artillery cross-fire.

Fleets of rebel bombs unleashed their death-dealing missiles on the model prison in the Casa de Campo sector, the Montana barracks and other buildings. Several fell near the former royal palace and the Italian embassy.

Loyalist troops threw up a smoke screen in an effort to impede the raiders. Among the buildings hit by artillery shells was the French embassy, which was damaged, but no one hurt.

The capital's first after-dark air raid since August 9, broke just before 7:00, when a score of bombs were discharged near the main southern railroad station, and the famous Prado Museum.

An incendiary bomb fired the famous convent of Jeronimo, where Alfonso and other Kings of Spain were married, and the flames spread to two adjoining houses near the Prado. The church was crowded with refugees, but none were hurt.

A Belgian owned lumber mill was set afire in one of the most spectacular blazes. Two bombs fell in San Augustine street, wrecking two houses and setting fire to another.

All windows in the Palace Hotel were shattered when bombs burst in Parliament Square. Another broke by the Cortez, in the square, which faces the Savoy Hotel.

The San Carlos hospital was reported afire, but reports that the General Hospital was also ablaze were denied. In all there were about 30 fires, but most of the smaller ones were extinguished.

Morgan Back Home

New York, Nov. 17.—J. Piermont Morgan returned today from a trip to England and Scotland, looking entirely recovered from his illness of four months ago. He had "nothing to say," however, concerning America's improved conditions, the recent presidential election, or the possibility of war in Europe.

The 63-year-old financier arrived aboard the Queen Mary, accompanied by his valet-secretary. After breakfasting in the sitting room of his suite, he agreed to see a few of the newspapermen.

"You are expecting me to cackle, but I have nothing to cackle about," chuckled Morgan as he removed a long, curved pipe from his teeth, and greeted the reporters with handshakes.

Fantastic Costume*CARRIES OLD FLINTLOCK

George S. Stirl, Reading, travelling about the country to keep alive the spirit of the famous American pioneer Daniel Boone, came to Bristol, last night.

Stirl says he is a native of Berks County and is 72 years of age. He gives as his birthplace a log cabin near Kutztown, not far from where he says Boone was born.

Stirl introduced himself as "Daniel Boone" and greeted hundreds of people while here. He says that his hobby in life is to keep alive the pioneer spirit and to inspire youth to learn more of their country and to be good true Americans.

"Boone" wears an ornate costume which he says was presented to him by the Indian Princess Naomi, Inward Park, N. Y. "Boone" says he has visited the White House on numerous occasions, met Edison, Ford, Hoover and the late president, Calvin Coolidge.

Daniel Boone was not the greatest American pioneer but he was an outstanding one in the opinion of Stirl. Stirl in his fantastic garb of leather boots, a long skin coat, fur cap, flowing white beard and an old flintlock over his shoulder, was the center of interest of children as he covered the route of the parade.

Stirl was asked where he got the idea of going about the country as he does. "Oh, it came to me in a dream that I was to promote the Americanism for which the great Kentucky frontiersman stood."

"Boone" spends much of his time at school throughout the country posing for the students. At the present time he is at the Moore Institute in Philadelphia. He also visits schools and talks to children.

Bucks Countians Attend
State Council Convention

The 14th annual convention of Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women, to be held in the Penn-Harris Hotel, Harrisburg, starting today, will be attended by a number of Bucks County Republican women.

Those serving as delegates from the Bucks Council are: Mrs. John W. Cooper, Pineville, president; Mrs. Joseph Palmer, Langhorne; Mrs. William J. Leattor, Doylestown; Mrs. George Garretson, Edgely; and Mrs. J. Harry Hoffman, Doylestown.

A resident of Devon, Mrs. Humbert Borton Powell, is to be nominated for president of the state council, at the election period on Thursday afternoon, the closing session. Mrs. Powell has been corresponding secretary. The present president is Mrs. George R. Hemphill, who has been nominated for the third vice-presidency.

Mrs. Cooper, Bucks county president, is a member of the state council's resolutions committee, as is also Mrs. J. Harry Hoffman, Doylestown.

IN VICTORY PARADE*Procession Illuminated by Red

Good Music*NUMEROUS FLOATS

Democrats held their victory parade in Bristol last evening, with representatives from Bristol Borough, Bristol Township, Tullytown, Morrisville, West Rockhill, and Doylestown marching. About 75 cars and trucks were in the procession.

The blowing of the fire siren, twice, announced that the parade had started from Wilson avenue in the sixth ward. It was well after nine o'clock before the procession reached Mill street.

Six units of music were in the parade, including the American Legion Cadet Corps, and Ferklo's string band from Philadelphia. These two units attracted the greatest attention from bystanders. The Cadets were performing at their best and the attire of the string band won the praise of the on-lookers.

Radcliffe street and Mill street were both clear of cars to give the Democratic aggregation more room for the demonstration. Two State Highway Patrol officers led the way. They were followed by two police officers of the borough, and Chief Linford J. Jones, and then came the Cadets.

Following the Cadets came representatives from West Rockhill, Doylestown, Tullytown, Morrisville, and Bristol Township.

Following the visiting towns who were first in line, came a delegation representing the first and third wards grouped together. At their head was the Ferklo string band of 40 pieces. Other wards of Bristol followed in order.

There were numerous floats of a satirical nature and decorated automobiles. Red fire illuminated the paraders.

Bristol Postmaster Joseph P. Duffy was the marshal. The route included: Wilson avenue to Pond, Jefferson, Radcliffe, Mill, Bath, Buckley, Beaver, Spring, Jefferson, Garden, Beaver, to Leedom's field for dismissal.

Fire Threatens Yacht Club

Philadelphia, Nov. 17.—The Delaware River Yacht Club, in the Torresdale section of northwest Philadelphia, was threatened with destruction by fire today, but firemen gained control after an eight-foot hole had been burned in the roof.

Herbert Hind, 45, steward of the club, and his wife, Anna, 42, were the only occupants of the place when the fire started beside a chimney on the south gable of the three-story stone, brick and frame structure.

Flames from the roof shot 25 feet into the air, and could be seen for miles around. Firemen from Tacony, Bustleton, Hybrey and Holmesburg fought the blaze for two hours.

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 17.—Addressing several hundred men and women attending the Fall meeting of the Bucks County School Directors' Association yesterday in the Bucks county Court House, Dr. Clarence E. Ackley, director of school administration and finance of the State Department of Public Instruction, Harrisburg, declared that never before in the history of the state have the school directors and those in charge of the education of the boys and girls of Pennsylvania, had as fine an opportunity to accomplish worthwhile improvement as right now.

"Speaking from a non-partisan viewpoint," Dr. Ackley declared, "it is up to us now to put up the very best type of school legislation for we all know that what we suggest, will go through for unity now exists in the Legislature. I am going to pledge you that whatever is suggested will first be scrutinized by the Department of Public Instruction with the idea that only the best improvements and changes will be submitted for final passage. Never before has my responsibility and your own been as great as it is today, for if things not worthwhile are sent to the Legislature and passed it will be our fault and not the legislators."

Dr. Ackley, who is an outstanding leader in his field throughout the United States, spoke at the afternoon session on "The school tax situation in Pennsylvania." He said that the school budget just formulated for the next biennium amounts to $97,000,000 in Pennsylvania.

He also pointed out that it is a fine thing that not one school in Pennsylvania closed its doors during the depression. There were 308 school districts in the Nebraska just has elected its first non-partisan, unicameral legislature under the scheme advocated and finally brought to adoption in that state by Senator George W. Norris.

NEBRASKA'S EXPERIMENT

The theory is that state issues have little or nothing to do with the issues fought out in presidential or congressional campaigns; that state issues accordingly will be decided better and state government managed better if the voters elect a relatively few legislators, running on the state issues alone and without party labels.

Applied to state government, the non-partisan election is wholly untried and there is no unanimity of opinion among students of government as to its worth. It is conceded that state and national issues seldom coincide and that placing state and national candidates on a single ticket does not always aid in intelligent decision on either. Even so, it is doubted by some that representative government in an area as large and varied as the typical state can be carried on satisfactorily without party organization. In addition others regard state party organization as an indispensable adjunct of the national party organizations and would be loath to see them eliminated.

Doubt as to the outcome of the Nebraska experiment is sufficient to insure it an interested audience.

RADIO ACROSS THE BORDERS

The radio has brought many innovations, but the most recent is its use for international spitting and threatening. Dictators and governments are shouting at each other through the ether like bad neighbors fighting over a backyard fence.

In his Milan speech Mussolini said, "I address myself to the British, who perhaps at this moment are listening." Then he told of the importance of the Mediterranean Sea to Italy. "For us Italians it is life," he said. "Our rights and our vital interests must be respected. But we have said a thousand times, and I repeat, that we do not intend to menace this road. We do not intend to interrupt it."

And in the British House of Commons, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who had been listening, came back in kind. "Britain welcomes the assurance that Mussolini and Italy do not propose to threaten the route through the Mediterranean. Once more I repeat the assurance that we have no desire to threaten or intention to attack any Italian interest in the Mediterranean."

So what? If both of these good neighbors mean what they say they might as well call home their warships and dismantle their forts. And if they did that perhaps the world would begin to believe them.

The Musings of A Native Son--

A Weekly Commentary on Things of Local Interest which will appear each Tuesday in this column.

On last Thursday evening the members of the Bristol Exchange Club listened to one of the most instructive addresses that it has ever been their pleasure to hear. The speaker was William Ramsey, noted traveler, lecturer and newspaper correspondent.

For years he has been living in foreign countries where he contacted the working people, and from them obtained a slant on national problems that could not be acquired elsewhere. During his address and in answer to the questions asked at its conclusion, he explained conditions as they existed abroad in such a manner as to prove somewhat startling. He stated that Communism in Russia had been a complete failure and that the government today is State Capitalism in the hands of ten men. The government has tried to suppress religion and he gave a number of illustrations as to the methods employed, but it has been unsuccessful and he predicted that in a short time there would be revived some sort of a State religion in Russia. There is growing a strong opposition to Stalin and his form of government, but it is without leadership, and any one who attempts to set himself up as leader is quickly done away with.

In Germany opposition against Hitler is growing. He has three men in his cabinet who do not believe in Nazism and one of them is at the head of the army. They refuse to salute him with the Nazi salute, neither does the army which this general commands, but use as a substitute the regular army salute. These three men are so powerful that Hitler dares not remove them. Hitler is in constant fear of assassination and his enemies are grooming one of the Kaiser's sons to be his successor when the office becomes vacant.

The information he gave about Spain was most interesting. He said that under King Alfonso the Church was granted large sums of money and owned considerable land. The present president, Manuel Azana, was a priest who rebelled against what he thought was the corruption of the church, and withdrew from the priesthood. Then he wrote a book in which he attacked the church, but without success. After the overthrow of the monarchy a republic was established with ex-priest, Manuel Azana, as president. He did not harass the church but allowed freedom of religious worship. Then he undertook the task of organizing a system of public schools to educate the masses. So much illiteracy existed, however, that he was unable to find enough teachers. Then he offered positions as teachers to the priests. His next move was to grant the right of franchise to men and women over 23 years old. Subsequently, when the first election was held the government suffered severe embarrassment. Upon investigation it was found that the priests had been teaching the children that to preserve the church, the government must be overthrown. While these occurrences were not the direct cause of hostilities, yet they were contributory forces. When the war started the Fascists became the force back of the church. All other "isms" such as atheism, communism and anarchism that were opposed to Fascism united with the government. It is wrong to say that the government is Communist for the Communists are the smallest group that is fighting with the State. The speaker said it made little difference which side eventually won the war as Spain was practically ruined.

He next reviewed the plans that Mussolini had in mind. He said that while Mussolini had embarrassed England during the Ethiopian War, England was now building up such an engine of war that in five years Mussolini would be on his knees to England. He is now seeing the handwriting on the wall. He told of the roads that Mussolini was building in preparation for a war with France and how the latter country had checked him. He said that France was building underground fortifications all along its frontier, and that should war break out, it would be able to move its armies from one end of France to the other, underground.

Mr. Ramsey spoke to the students of the Morrisville High School on last Thursday morning and held their attention for three hours. In the afternoon he spoke to the Bristol high school for an hour, and then continued with the history classes for an hour and a half longer. In the evening he spoke for an hour and fifty minutes to the members of the Exchange Club. By invitation a number of members of the Rotary Club were present to hear the address. It is a great pity that an address like this of so much informational value, could not have been heard by the public.

Sometimes there are happenings and occurrences in our lives, that cause us to feel that perhaps, an unseen hand is guiding us. A few years ago, I received a letter from a lady who resided in Mississippi, asking for information about the descendants of Charles Bessonet, who had removed from Bristol to the South. Charles Bessonet it will be remembered, built the Delaware House at the corner of Mill and Radcliffe streets, back in 1765. I could offer no information at the time the letter was received and didn't know where to look for it. Sometime later while looking over some records in the Recorder of Deeds office at Doylestown, I found a copy of a deed signed by John who was a son of Charles Bessonet, which contained a biographical history of those members of the Bessonet family who had moved to Mississippi and Alabama and who became the progenitors of the Bessonet family in the South. I copied the information from the deed and forwarded it to the lady in Mississippi, who had made the inquiry. Not so long ago, a young man who resides in Virginia, was anxious to obtain the genealogy of the Booz family. I made some inquiries but could find no information that would help the young man in his undertaking. Within the last few months, I came into possession of a document, by accident, which upon close examination proved to be a copy of searches that had been made during the transfer of a piece of property, located on upper Radcliffe street over 100 years ago.

To my surprise I found that John Booz who was the progenitor of the Booz family in America, had come to Bristol in 1767, and purchased 300 acres of land in what is now the northern part of the town. When the limits of the Borough were extended to the Hollow Creek in 1800, sixty-three acres of Booz's land were located within the Borough, extending from the Hollow Creek to Lafayette, and West to a point beyond where the canal was subsequently cut through. This John Booz also owned 700 acres in West Bristol Township, which extended from the Turnpike to the Delaware River.

John Booz had a son, Peter Booz, who fell heir to his father's estate. Peter Booz became the father of eight children, Mary, Rebecca, Elizabeth, John, Fannie, Naomi, Peter and Joseph. Peter Booz died intestate, and when the Orphans Court, directed the settlement of his estate, these 63 acres of land which were situated within the Borough limits, were awarded to his daughter, Elizabeth, who at the time was the wife of Stephen Hibbs. This information reveals how the Booz and Hibbs families became united through marriage.

From these eight children of Peter Booz may be said to have descended the large Booz family of Bucks County. John Booz, the son of Peter Booz, married three times, and was the father of 14 children. The children by his first wife were: John, Jacob, Daniel, Joseph P., William, Samuel, Rebecca, Mary, Elizabeth; second wife, no issue; third wife, Amos, Peter, James, Lavinia, Sarah. From Joseph P., the son of John Booz by his first wife, the Bristol branch of the family descended.

I have given this information, in the hope that it may be of benefit, to those members of the Booz family who desire to trace their ancestry.

"Sweepstakes on Love"

CHAPTER XVIII

"Just because he's handsome and popular and people like him even if he's lost his money, you have to hold it against him!"

Genevieve had smiled unpleasantly—a smile which spoke volumes. "Instead of hanging about his apartment and wasting time, you should have had your hair shampooed after the four days on the train."

Diana could have retorted that it was her mother's fault they had waited—that she herself had suggested leaving—but what good would it do?

"I can shampoo my hair right here," she had retired into the bathroom and locked the door.

But she had kissed her mother goodnight. Tired as she was, she could not have slept otherwise.

Now, at half past six in the morning, she tiptoed out of the bedroom, for fear of waking Genevieve, and set the coffee pot on the electric stove in the kitchenette, and had her bath.

Genevieve was up and in her dressing gown when Diana emerged. They looked at each other. Genevieve fried bacon and eggs, and made the toast in the electric toaster.

"Ought I to wear slacks to the studio, mother? Or would that seem too casual?"

"Certainly it would. The pink sports suit, darling? It had been bought, extravagantly, for Genevieve. It was a very pretty suit and had been made down for Diana by the nimble fingers of Bella, the Italian maid."

"I see you set your hair nicely last night," Diana's hair was naturally curly, which was a blessing.

Diana chatted with her mother as she dressed. Awake, Genevieve looked much less fatigued. She had put a touch of rouge on her cheeks.

At twenty minutes after seven, Roger arrived with his car.

Genevieve had evidently re-acted her tirade last night concerning him. She spoke pleasantly to Roger, offering him a cup of coffee, which he accepted, although he said he had already breakfasted.

Calumet Pass, with its saffron hills and bright foliage and brighter signboards, was radiant as they drove by.

"Excited, Diana?" He slipped an arm about her for a moment.

"I'm divinely happy, Roger. It was sweet of you to get up an hour earlier and come for me."

She thrust her hand to his touch. She snuggled closer.

"Like old times, isn't it, Diana? Old times in the new life out here. That's what I want."

She could have shouted: "And you shall have them, darling. I want nothing better in the world than to be with you. You all the time!"

One of the strangest experiences of Diana's life was to take place on her arrival at the studio.

Other people had usually considered her a very pretty girl, although vanity was not her weakness.

But now, amazingly, any favorable opinion she might have cherished as to her appearance was to be removed!

She was to be made over for the cameras. Highly skilled men and women were garnering huge salaries for the renovation of greenhorns like herself. She was to find that out.

Roger deposited her at Mr. Kayser's make-up department in the studio, and the conference was on.

Mr. Kayser looked like a baby bird who had dropped out of the family nest prematurely. He flattered about her, craning his thin neck up at her and uttering queer little sounds like "teh! teh!"

There were two male assistants with him who stared at her silently, critically.

Mr. Kayser's clucking changed into words. "Those eyebrows will all have to be pulled out," he snapped.

"All of them?" gasped Diana, amazed.

"Yes. The line's incorrect. We'll get a much better effect for the cameras by painting them at an angle running towards the temples."

He came close up to her and stared into her eyes. "You'll have to have new eyelashes." He took a step backward, screwing up his face as his gaze went lower. "Brown, her chin's too short. It's entirely out of proportion to the rest of her face. See that?"

"Um," said Brown. He nodded. "Mouth's too wide, and it droops to the left."

Brown said laconically, "Lipstick! Lift it!"

The third man stepped suddenly forward after staring solemnly at Diana. He looked at Mr. Kayser, raising his eyebrows, and putting his hand to the left side of his face.

"You're right, Steinman. Her face is lopsided." Then to Diana: "We can lift the left side by raising the eyebrow higher than the right one, and fixing the left corner of your mouth with a lift of the lip-stick."

Thought Diana: "I must be hideous, and never knew it! Isn't this dreadful?"

How on earth had the studio scout ever engaged her?

"Let's have a look at your teeth now. Open, please. Smile."

She grinned unhappily, feeling like a monster. Was this an age-guessing contest?

"Not so bad, not so bad," murmured Mr. Kayser, rubbing his tiny hands together. "Fairly nice teeth, in fact. But remember not to smile so broadly when you're in front of the camera."

There was a silence. Then he added, brusquely: "Your hair's too dark. We better make you a blonde."

"Please—no. I mean, if it's possible not to change it—" stammered Diana, but they paid no attention.

"Her skin's good. Call Miss Golden."

Bearing a tray with a dozen different shades of powder on it, and a variety of pots and little boxes, Miss Golden came in.

"All the eyebrows out. Miss Golden. And she needs artificial eyelashes. Get going, will you?"

Diana went into an inner room with Miss Golden.

In three-quarters of an hour she was transformed.

Then came the camera test in another part of the studio. Lights blazed full on her. Half-a-dozen men were holding lights about her. They kept shouting strange expressions to each other as they moved the lights so that they fell on her face at varying angles. "Hi, there, break her neck!" "Hit her on the nose with the spot!" "Her mouth's crooked," etc.

At half past nine, the director, Mr. Falconer, arrived.

"We'll shoot the first test now, Miss Darlington," he said pleasantly, greeting her with a smile. "Just be easy. Just be yourself."

Diana felt terribly nervous, however. "Smile, please. Turn your head. Look over there. Stop! Stop everything."

The smile, it seemed, had been too artificial.

It had all to be done over again. And again. And again.

Dr. C. E. Ackley Is Speaker At Session of Bucks Directors

cause some business concerns only hire the better-trained people. He thought that by pooling the resources of several communities, all children will get the best in education.

"Small schools are hard on the slow-learning child," Hopkins continued. "This is because of the lack of library and athletic facilities, poor toilet facilities, lack of shop practice and last but not least, poor teacher conditions. The larger unit corrects all this and gives a bigger, better and more healthy building where children can be grouped to better advantage. Teachers can be supervised more readily, they can get together to work out their own problems, and a better community spirit is maintained."

Mr. Hopkins declared the WPA funds will still be available until next April to any community that is contemplating school improvements.

The committee in Bucks county appointed to study the bigger unit idea, reported to the convention yesterday that they felt that the larger board of directors would be an excellent thing, but should be elected just the same as they are now. The committee felt that a large group of directors would not be handled so easily by the politicians and that the directors should be a community rather than a county unit. The committee was opposed to state control but wants local supervision. The committee felt that Bucks county should be broken up by a committee of directors along with the County Superintendent and one outsider, probably a county judge, for an unbiased survey.

Mr. Hopkins read a paper on "The Advantage of Consolidation," prepared by Mrs. Agnes Reed, of West Rockhill township. In that township, before consolidation there was a 14 mill assessment of which the entire amount was used for current expenses, including repairs. Today only .011 is used for operating expenses and 5 mills is being used for reducing the debt incurred in erecting the consolidated school building.

"No informed person denies that there are many advantages in consolidation although some are reluctant to admit it," Mrs. Reed wrote. "The chief objection lies in most cases in the supposed additional burden of taxes which will rest on the already overburdened taxpayer. In West Rockhill township no such burden has fallen on the taxpayer but rather the running expenses of the school have quite perceptibly diminished.

"With the 11 mills running expense and 5 mills for debt reduction, we have a tax rate of only 16 mills, only an additional 2 mills above the former assessments, and the new building represents the 2 mills."

Mrs. Reed, in her paper, stated that "this generation is quite creditably reducing the indebtedness and it is not going to be as some of the opposition predicted, that our children's children would have the debt to pay."

"A careful examination of the annual statements for the last ten years under the old system shows that repairs on the old buildings made a decided trend upward year by year," Mrs. Reed pointed out. "This part of the taxpayers' money in addition to that spent for cleaning the classrooms and the additional cost of fuel over and above what we now use, plus the cost of equipping and maintaining an extra room to take care of the overcrowded condition in the rooms already occupied was found to be quite sufficient to provide for a janitor and supply the necessary power, light and water for the new building.

"The difference alone in the expenditure for fuel is interesting. Under the old system, $647.50 was the highest bill paid and in the new building $291.25 was the lowest bill paid.

"We have eight rooms comfortably heated to begin our work every day while before, at a much greater cost we had seven rooms not always comfortably warm in the morning for the first classes. Each room has its own small library. We have our safety patrol and many other things, advantages that should be enjoyed by every boy and girl."

One of the features of the morning session was the showing in detail on a motion picture screen, the new Quakertown High school kindergarten that has been looked upon as one of the finest in the entire state, and operated at no additional cost to the taxpayer. The school directors took an old, dingy room and refurnished it. The linoleum on the floor was designed by Norman Detweiler, of Quakertown and sent to a manufacturer to complete. A modern fireplace was installed, a lavatory installed, and attractive pictures painted on the walls by a WPA artist from Morrisville. Glass bricks were used in part of the room where windows had been. Moved the bricks serving as an ideal insulator.

"We started the kindergarten because we knew that our children would be far better equipped to enter school the following year," Joseph S. Neidig, supervising principal of the Quakertown school, explained. Dr. R.

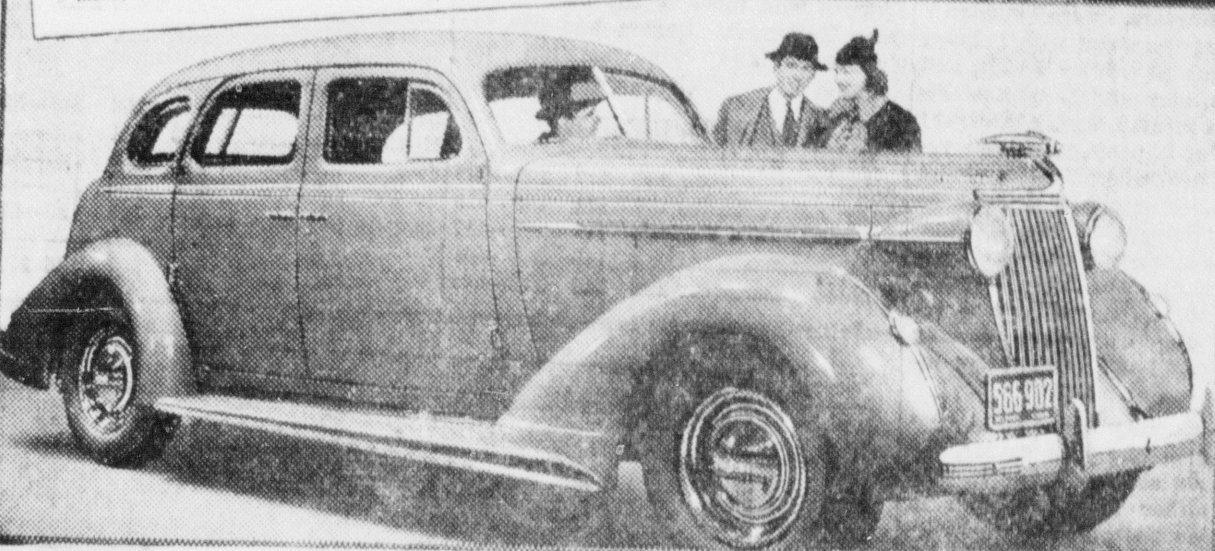

D. Tice, of Quakertown, also spoke highly of the new kindergarten and the great advantage it is to any community.

BRISTOL "RECS" DOWN XI FROM LANGHORNE, 12-6

The Bristol Recreation Center football team smashed their way to a brilliant 12-6 victory over the previously unbeaten, untied Langhorne eleven here, Sunday, before a crowd estimated at 800.

Taking advantage of a break in the first period when Tommy Baines recovered a fumble on the Aces' 10-yard line, the Recs scored their first touchdown when Jimmie Rue tossed a pass to Joe Flatch in the end zone. Rue's placement was wide.

Both teams battled back and forth during the second and third quarters with neither having a decided edge. However, the fourth period had barely started when Langhorne, taking the ball on their own 15, started a drive that did not stop until they had crossed the goal line. Reverses, off tackle, and a pass, Phillips to Rossi that was good for 27 yards, featured the drive. The try for point failed, and the score stood 6-6. With 10 minutes to play, Langhorne kicked off to Bristol and the ball was downed on the 10-yard line. At this point, Whitey Mellon, a newcomer to the Rec fans, was sent back in at fullback. Slashing off tackle for gains ranging from six to 15 yards, he personally accounted for the second score. Time and again it required two and sometimes three men to bring him down. Superb blocking on the part of Rue, Kervick and Flatch was a deciding factor in the sustained march.

Bill Phillips was the loser's best bet. Besides playing 60 minutes, he was a stand-out on the defense and the Aces most consistent ground gainer.

The line-up:

Bristol	Langhorne
Baines	Rossi
center	Black
right guard	Baingo
right tackle	Downey
right end	Phillips
quarterback	Lawrence

Time of periods: 15 minutes.

Referee: O. Williams, St. Joseph's; umpire, Hermanson, Langhorne; head linesman, D. Williams, Parkland Tech.

TO HONOR PLAYERS

Bristol Recreation Center football team will hold a skating party Thursday evening at the Recreation Center at eight o'clock. The players are being entertained in honor of their win over Langhorne, and are permitted to invite their wives or friends to attend.

VICTORY OF BRISTOL XI COST SEVERAL PLAYERS

By Louis Tomlinson

Although the Bunnies were able to come from behind in a second-half rally to overcome a Burlington 6-0 lead, and then go on to increase the lead and finally beat the Burs, 19-6, nevertheless the victory was a costly one for the Cardinals as they lost no less than five men due to injuries and sickness. Of the five who fell victims to the furious battle and nature, four were starters and the fifth a first-class substitution.

They were: Quarterback Harry Baurath; Center Bill Mignoni, both of whom are starters, were suddenly stricken during the game with gripe; also Jesse Vansant, stellar tackle, and Leon Cialella, star guard, both starters, who were injured during the fray; and finally, Pat Capecci, a capable replacement at center, who fell a victim of the game. Whether they will be ready to participate in the Quakertown game is uncertain as yet. However, it is definite that Jesse Vansant will be lost to the squad for the remainder of the campaign, dealing Coach "Gloomy Bill" Dougherty another blow.

With this casualty list, the highest of the season at one time so far, the Dougherty lads set out today to prepare for another dangerous foe in Quakertown on Saturday.

Coach "Gloomy Bill" has given his proteges four more new and very deceptive plays in hopes of ballyhooing the "Quakes" and "Bulldogs." Although greatly handicapped by these injuries he set about polishing up on the rough points shown in the Burlington game. The up-counties have been scouting Bristol, but Coach Dougherty thinks the new plays will trickily deceive the unaware Quaker aggregation.

The Bucks County P. I. A. A. basketball tournament sponsored by Bristol and held under the supervision of Coach Dougherty, was played to bring the upper division of Bucks County into a closer relationship with lower Bucks county teams. That was one of its purposes. The Blue and White squad is one of the best in Bucks county and is brought into even closer relationship which Coach hopes will continue for a long period to come with Bristol.

They come to Bristol, however, with a good record and hope to maintain it. Moreover, they are coming with no love in their hearts and fire in their eyes in seeking the "hide and hare" of the Bunnies. Furthermore, they intend to avenge the stinging 32-0 defeat handed them by the locals last year. For they say, "Nothing is sweeter than revenge."

We quote Coach "Gloomy Bill" Dougherty on the game as follows: "Bristol will fight tooth and nail in order to overcome the handicap of losing four starters, as a victory over Quakertown is important in deciding the mythical Bucks County championship."

GUN CLUB MEMBERS ARE PLEASED WITH HUNTING

EDGELY, Nov. 17.—The Edgely Rod & Gun Club held its November meeting in Dick's Hall, last evening, with President Elwood Britton presiding. Members reported having quite a lot of luck in shooting pheasants and rabbits. A committee of five was appointed to select probable officers for the coming year, to be voted on next meeting night. A special effort is being made to get entertainment and refreshments for the December meeting, and the president would like to see as many members out as possible. The trap committee reported it will have another shooting match next Sunday with a turkey and other fowl for prizes.

The winners of last Sunday's match were: George Bruden, Bristol, first; Quinn, Tullytown, second; and McKage, Philadelphia, third.

FORD

advances into 1937 with the LOWEST PRICE IN YEARS and new operating economy

THE ADDITION of a new 60-horsepower engine to the Ford line for 1937 brings you a new, low price and gives you a choice of two V-type 8-cylinder engines. 85 horsepower for maximum performance. 60 horsepower for maximum economy.

In basic design, the new 60-horsepower V-8 engine is a replica of its famous older brother—the V-8 "85." But its reduced size and weight make possible a lighter car, with lower operating costs, and the lowest Ford price in years.

The 60-horsepower engine was originally developed for use in England and France, where fuel costs are high and fuel economy is vitally important. It has been proven there for two years with brilliant success. Now, brought to America, it creates an entirely new standard of modern motoring economy!

The "60" engine is built in exactly the same body size and wheelbase, to the same advanced design, with the same comfort and convenience as the "85." It has all the distinctive Ford features for 1937. And it delivers V-8 smoothness and quietness at speeds up to 70 miles an hour.

Two engine sizes—but only one car and one purpose—to give you more miles and more satisfaction for your money in 1937. We invite you to see this very modern car at the showrooms of the nearest Ford dealer.

FORD FEATURES FOR 1937

APPEARANCE—Distinctive modern design. Headlamps streamlined into fender aprons. Modern lid-type hood. Larger luggage space. Interiors entirely new. Slanting V-type windshield opens in all closed cars.

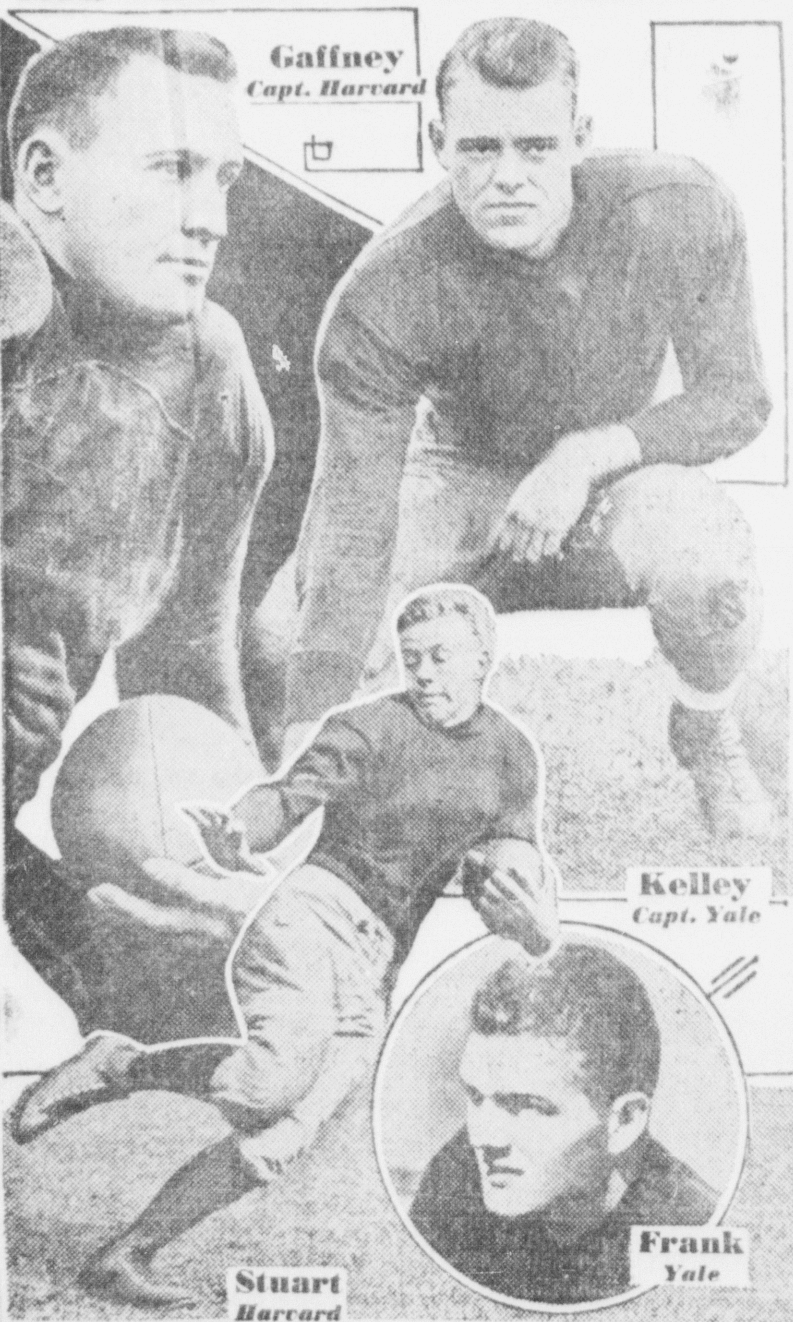

BRAKES—The Easy-Action Safety Brakes in the new Ford give you "the safety of steel from pedal to wheel." Cable and conduit control type. Self-energizing. About one-third less pedal pressure is required to stop the car.

BODY—All steel. Top, sides, floor and frame welded into a single steel unit of great protective strength. Safety Glass throughout at no extra charge.

COMFORT AND QUIET—A big, roomy car with extra space in the body, where you want it—not taken up by the engine under the hood. Comfort of the Ford Center-Poise Ride is increased by smoother spring-action with new pressure lubrication. New methods of mounting body and engine make this a quieter car.
